

Mr. Frederick G. Lyttle III enlisted in the United States Army Intelligence Branch in March, 1990. Mr. Lyttle held two Military Occupational Specialties: 96B Intelligence Analyst, and 98J Non-Communications Interceptor Analyst in a variety of Joint, Operational, and Tactical positions. Mr. Lyttle's contributions to the Army, Joint, and Department of Defense community include:

- All-Source Intelligence Analyst –28th Infantry Division G-2, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania
- Electronic Intelligence Watch Officer – National Security Operations Center, National Security Agency, 743rd Military Intelligence Battalion, Fort Meade, Maryland
- All-Source / Targeting Operator – 2nd Infantry Division G-2, Camp Essayons, South Korea
- SIGINT Evaluator / Reporter– 743rd Military Intelligence Battalion, Buckley Air Force Base, Colorado
- Tactical Exploitation of National Capabilities (TENCAP) Systems NCOIC – 502nd Military Intelligence Battalion, Joint Base Lewis-McCord, Washington
- Signals Intelligence NCOIC – Combat Support Coordination Team One (CSCT 1) and First Republic of Korea Army, Camp Long, South Korea
- Tactical Exploitation of National Capabilities (TENCAP) Instructor / Course Writer – Tactical Exploitation System (TES) Analyst Course, 305th Military Intelligence Battalion, Fort Huachuca, Arizona
- Intelligence Enterprise Architecture Analyst –Capabilities Development and Integration, Requirements Determination Directorate, Architecture, Fort Huachuca, Arizona
- Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance Test and Evaluator –Joint Interoperability Test Command, Fort Huachuca, Arizona
- Electronic Warfare Officer / Technical Military Trainer and Course Developer – Fort Sill, Oklahoma
- Integrated Broadcast Service Systems (IBS) Action Officer – Capabilities Development and Integration, Requirements Determination Directorate, Army Broadcast Intelligence Office, Fort Huachuca, Arizona
- Army Broadcast Intelligence Office, Army Program Lead – Capabilities Development and Integration, Requirements Determination Directorate, Army Broadcast Intelligence Office, Fort Huachuca, Arizona

As the Army IBS Program Lead, Mr. Lyttle presently serves as the Army's Executive Agent and Program Manager for the Integrated Broadcast Service across all Army branches, including Intelligence, Air Missile Defense, Fires, Aviation, and Special Operations. Mr. Lyttle has led a team of five to discover capability regression and gaps within the Army, as well as develop IBS requirements for future Army Capabilities.

Mr. Lyttle is a graduate of the following professional courses:

Army Capabilities Development Course
Integrated Broadcast Service Manager's Course
Department of Defense Architecture Format Course
Basic Instructor Training Course
Tactical Exploitation System (TES) Analyst Course
Unit Movement Officer Deployment Planning Course
Basic Non-Commissioned Officer's Course
Enhanced Mobile Integrated Tactical Terminal (E-MITT) Course
Tactical Exploitation of National Capabilities (TENCAP) Analyst Data Course
World-Wide Electronic Order of Battle Course
Classic Wizard Basic Operators Course
All Source – Single Source (ASAS) Basic Analyst Course

Mr. Lyttle has a Bachelor of Science in Intelligence Operations with minor studies in World History from Wayland Baptist University, Plainview, Texas. Mr. Lyttle is attending the Mises Academy for post-graduate education in Austrian Economics and Business Cycle from Ludwig von Mises Institute, in Auburn, Alabama.

Mr. Lyttle is married and has a daughter graduating Buena High School to pursue a Bachelor of Science in Communications and Minor in Business.